THE TEMPLE

During Bible times, the temple in Jerusalem was the center of Hebrew life. It began with the construction of the first temple by King Solomon, and ended with its destruction by the Romans in 70 AD. To house the Ark of the Covenant, King Solomon built the first temple in the tenth century, which was later destroyed by the Babylonians. They stole all its precious items and burned what remained. A second temple was constructed during the time of Nehemiah and underwent major renovation during the reign of King Herod.

One reason King Herod enlarged the Temple Mount was to accommodate the large number of pilgrims who came to Jerusalem to honor the Passover and Feast of Unleavened Bread, Pentecost (Shavu'ot), and Tabernacles (Sukkot). During the Passover sacrifice at the temple, those who wished to sacrifice formed groups. The Passover lamb, unlike the usual animal offerings, was sacrificed by the Israelites themselves. As with all peace offerings, it was offered in the inner court and its blood tossed on the altar. After one group completed the ritual, the doors were opened again and the next group entered. The lambs were roasted and eaten that night.
